It is saily suggestive to see men grouped together at the seeveral departments or at the hotels, porting over the Bitue Book with expanding eyes and greedyvi sged features, ranging down the lists of offices with salaries ranging all the way from $700 to $500. Of course they all expect to obtain a position, and all assert that they have influence enough to secure any possible position. They will dight it out for works and months, expending their last dollar, will bore senators, congressmen and leading officials to its point of insanity, will come down gently in their as itrations from a foreign minister to a lighthouse keeper; and at last, broken in pocket, pinck and political ambition, will steal away to their beenes prepared to founding the United States government and at its attaches to the lowest verge of the halls of hades. [Sacramento Record-(Inion.)]
There is indeed only one real pseudiarity about thileau's character, and that is his extreme egotism. To this is attributable the brutal calloueness of his deniesner, his continued insolence, his inability to really a the detectation in which he is held, his persisting the belief that the "stalwarts" will after all be substituted to the present of the contract of the present of the contract of the onipalled to rally round him and preserve him out the fate he has deserved. All the peculiarities temperament. But it is a vice, and not a manners. The man is as sans as millions, in fact, and he is thoroughly responsible for all that he has done. The fact that he is of a very but type only suggests the more forelby the wistom and the lastice of hanging him as effectually and speechly as possible.

INDIAN LANDS IN SEVERALTY. The first step in the permanent settlement of the Indian question was the gathering of the Indians on reservations. This was absolutely necessary for them; but it has fulfilled its object, and the reservation system can no longer serve a good purpose. The next change is the esential one of abolishing the community of lands on reservations and assigning of representatives is growing warm, and at to the Indians lands in severalty for their oc- present appears to be narrowed down to a cupation and use. The basis of all civilization is the acquisition of property through individual industry, and the protection of person and property by equal laws. Most of the the rails will be down and ears running by reservations contain more land than is neces- January 1, 1882. sarp for division among the occupants for their seiual use. The surplus should be sold, and the proceeds administered for their benefit under the direction of the government. The courts of the United States would probably be the fittest agency for this trust. Distribution. of the reservation lands now offer the best method of breaking up the tribal community into its units. Ownership of lands in severalty is the policy which contains all possibilities now remaining for improvement of the native races. It is not doubted that some would do poorly enough; but on the whole there would either he improvement among them, or they would have to "move on" like their fathers, to destiny. The interior department at Washington now takes this view of the situation. Hence Secretary Kirkwood, in his raport, now ready for presentation to Congress, will carnestly recommend that provision be made for clatributing the lands equitably among the Indians and selling for their benefit whatever surplus may be found. It is time to put an end to the community system. The tribal relation has been in existence among the natives of America from the time of the landing of the whites on the continent. It is the most primitive of all forms of human government. No real improvement has ever been made, nor is any possible undersuch conditions. The only progress that can be made on the reservations under the present system is through innovation upon the communal habits of the Indians and their stimulation to individual industry. The capital measure to bring about the changes desired is segregation of the Indians from each other, bestowal of their lands upon them in soveralty, abandonmen; of the present system of tutelage and guardianship, and enforcement of all the laws for toeir protection in the enjoyment of their rights and for their punishment for wrongdoing. In short, make the Indian an individual person, and deal with him as such, granting him all his lawful rights and holding him to his lawful responsibility, the same as other HIGHWAYS OF COMMERCE. Wille great channels of commerce like the Columbia river are left unimproved, mi lions are squandered on petty water courses where there is no commerce, nor ever will be any worth the name. West Virginia alono, a state whose "rivers" dry up into catalsh poo s, has been receiving annually larger sums than all the rivers and harbors of the Pacific coast. The report of the government engineers on the Little Kanawha in that state is an edifying accument. The vessels used in the navigation of this "river," for improvement of which large appropriations are veted at every seed on of congress, consist of push-box's and rafts. Last session $240,000 was voted for this gree: bighway of commerce, and the cry is still for "more." The Big Saudy, in West Virginia and Kentucky, is another case. This is also a push-boat-raft way of commerce. Its Bame Big Sandy would be singularly inaplow water, had it not been proven bly chough to swallow up enormous appropriations. The engineers want $1,900,000 to deepen it from three inches to a foot! Of still another West Virginia stream the engineers say the navigation must be improved by removing rocks, smage and everbanging trees, and indeed befere the "river" can be considered properly prepared for the full development of stade upon it some or all the private mill dame should be removed or modified. Thus the government is spending money to "mod fy" private mili dams to enable the commerce of the sountry is be fathoated and rafted over these, while the great water-ways are almost wheler acglerted. It is cheering to read that Mes money has thus far been spent in con-Saturally with the idea of making open navigation of ten or twelve inches in depth." But to reach this wonderful result for the "rivers" West Virginia alone, will require mill one It is asserted at New York by the advocates

A very perceptible increase in the outrages perpe rated upon rent-paying tenants in Ireland, is reported. Notwithstanding the acknowledged benefits of the establishment of land courts, these offenses are of almost daily occurrence. ... It would appear that honest men are to have no part in the new government which Parnoll and his "no rent" colleagues so ardently hope for. Sympathy for their wees is not likely to be very profuse while such atrocities are countenanced.

Staid, easy-going old Cincinnati is wakening to heropossibilities as a rival of Chicago and New York, and is exerting herself to an aunusual extent. A large delegation of her merchants attended the Atlanta exposition with the view of meeting representatives of southern trade at that point and drawing a larger sha o of it into her embrace. Cincinnati is how building the finest union railroad depot in the country, at a cost of over $1,000,000.

Minneapolis now ranks as one of the great wheat-buying cities in the country. The necessities of its huge flouring mills create such a demand that but little of the crop of Minnesota and Dakota goes to Chicago. During ore week of October the receipts of wheat at Minneapolis were over 1,000,000 bushels, exceeding those of Chicago by nearly 100,000 bushels and only second to the amount received at New Coast Mail: The channel across Goes bay bar how runs to the southward, where it did in 1872, and there is plenty of water, twenty to twenty-four feet, at half tide. The only difficulty experienced from shoal water is at a place just thelow the sucherage in the lower bay, and this is only temporary as it will soon wash out and regulate itself as has been the case on several occasions heretofore. The channel at this point is somewhat crooked, but such vessels as can be conseniently handled in the bay encounter megreat difficulty in passing in and sut at will. What is now needed it at further apprepriation of some $50,000 to proscoute work on the 1 reakwater hax season and keep the channel about where it is at present. The desired influence of the treakwater hax season the channel working back to the northward, as it is bound to become more and more abeliew the further it extends in that direction, until through a rebounding indusence of its own it cuts almost straight through he se to the southward.

THE PATRIARCH ABRAHAM.

1 Vindication of Him against the Flippency of G. W. Lawson.

" Doch der schrecklichste der Schrecken. Das ist der Memech in seinem Wahu."

Fred'k von Schiller. TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN: About three thousand nine hundred years ago, the most densely populated part of the earth was, just as it is now, Asia, in this northeastern part of which, according to tradition and the cormboration of the writings of El-Wardi, Mohammed the Attir and Savid Nimatullah Wali, there ruled Adout Zedek, Hoham, Piram, Japhia and Debir. Each of these five kings ruled three scores of tribes, every one of which was again governed by a sheik, who was subject to and paid tribute to his respective king;

Now, history, both traditional and authentic, confirms the fact that the prevaiting religious in those 5 lines were the various forms of fetichism. The first men of the world, of course, had no fire, no houses and no weapons with which to d frad their lives or to hunt for food, and the most import. ant invention of the world was discovered when some man first made a spear out of a stick. Defenseless as men were, in the midst of hunger and cold and storms and wild beasts, the predoutsnt motive and feeling of the time must have been fear, and from this would naturally develop the first religion.

As men saw each other and the wild animals moving about and crying and making solses, and saw that they were alive; they, like the children they were, thought that everything that moved and make a noise, was also slive, and as the wild beasts burt and killed them when they got a chance, and as the storms, the cold and the lightning burt and killed them sometimes, their most pressing thought was one of safety.

them sometimes, their most pressing thought was one of safety.

They saw the trees move when the wind blew; they feat the power of the wind that they could not see; they saw the waters now; they saw the lightning flash, and twist ifself like a huge sempent in the clouds; they saw the sun and mon rise and set, and se they saw all things moving in this way, they thought that they were all living beings who night hurt them if they chose and thus they turned all those things into gods. They than began to pray to them for protection and to give or offer them then for protection and to give or offer them then things they thought they would like best, and to try to find out how they might induspect them to do what they desired. This was the original polythesism or feldelism in its lowest manifestations as, it prevailed yet about forth thousand years ago, when men's ofneepitons of 'the delities were on the level with the "fire-mist" or "aun-god; " or on the level with the "fire-mist" or "aun-god; " or on the level of the fase, like Dagon, the Philistine fish-god; or the level of the seepents, like the delities of the "serpent-worshippers;" or of the animals, like the served, bulks of, the Egyptima; or aimply a strong. with the "hre-mist" or "ann-god," or on the level of the fashes, like Dagon, the Philistine fash-god; or the level of the serpents, like the desities of the "serpent-worshippers," or of the animals, like the sered hulls, of the Egyptians; or simply a strong playsical man, like Hercales, or Jupiter of the Romans; and therefore the student and scholar of to-day, deed not and therefore the student and scholar of to-day, deed not stad oannot even weader that people in those remote ages of ignorance and superstition were what now-a-days may, be justly called "mon-strous idolators," atthough all the beautiful oak groves of the large realms of the above pamed five lings were full of idols, and on all the high-hills were huge altars, the space about them on every side covered with bones of beasts and human beings that has been sacrificed to their gods, of which Monochem's cettainly the most bloody and indexon. This brasen image was hollow. The stomach was an finalenest furnated. The most indexon, painted red, the arms moved by means of greings, closely fitted in iron joints; the fraids were furnated red, the arms moved by means of greings, closely fitted in iron joints; the fraids were furnated with long ingress, with spikes for halls. With these dreadfast fingers, widen were farmased with long ingress, with spikes for halls. With these dreadfast fingers, with spikes of the poor vicinity results

Tradition tells us how Abraham one day, in the absence of his father, broke with hammer and ax all the idols in the neighborhood, and when called to sweece account for it by his austers parent, fearing death, as a punishment, claimed that Moloch—for whom he and all children had but little reverence, but the more and deeper hatted—in a quarrellwith the batter idols, broke them all to pieces, pointing out to his carraged father that the nammer and ar were yet at the julo? all the But the 22d chapter of tax book of Genesis, from the 1st to the 20th verses, oftently informs us in the concise, mysterious, citizity informs us in the concise, mysterious, abubdant, and yet inadequate language in which sittle mystes, legands and parables of the Bible are related, that the patriarch Abraham to later years apparently attempted to sacrifice his only son Isaac, not, thousand the bible are related, that the patriarch Abraham to later years apparently attempted to sacrifice his only son Isaac, not, thousand the later of his dariling child, butteran may be clearly inferred from the un-written language between the lines - in order to destinate the heroby to all, the helphorting shelks and lings, the hideouness of the sarrifice of calldren, showing that God did not and does not want such a merines, though he may want the heart but call make it. ist could make it. Anticould make it.

Anticould make it.

The hard was according to all facts of both tradition; and, anthentic history, sacred as we I as prodese; the first man of the entire human race who

"Solic, the first man of the entire human race who is condity signorusly and powerfully protested against human secrifices, by and through which he became agreet, powerful, renowned and immortal, while even this day, besides ten mi lion Yous, onehundered and sighty million Mohammedans levingly and reverently cherish his name and memory at their passingschal succestor; and nearly three hundred million. Christians, of all denominations, mait with pairiacchai ascestor, and nearly three hundred mililea Christians, of all denominations, unite with them to pay reverence, love and advention to the grade source of life, love and reason, whom Abraham areologized gest of all men on earth as the great againt, the compressent and consiptent eleman (tod coffithe universe).

What sort of pitiful abserver or thinker must your correspondent, in a late autable of The Ourcouran, be, who associates Beecher and Guiteau, and, ingeredly and the crany pressure, of Pocasset frame, with the sainted name of the Pariarch Abrahasa, whose mame is reverently esquaven upon the hasa, whose mame is reverently esquaven upon the hasas, whose memory is revered above that of all limas, prisast and prophete, reformers or philosophase of all authentic history.

A who spaaks, writes or limbs, thus lightly of the 'Patrianch Abraham,' and, as a dangerous character to the peace, morals, harmony and souriety of society, degate to be put into a lumine stylum, or, at least,
be put under the vigilant supervision of the police authorities.
